Title	Antičke medulinske vile
Publisher	Zagreb, Hrvatska sveučilišna naklada, 2026
Description	222 str. ; 25 cm
ISBN	9789531695770 : EUR 31.90 US$ 38.90
Anotation	The Medulin Bay area is extremely interesting because it is about estates that belonged to the senatorial elite of Roman social and political life. It is precisely because of this ownership structure that it is not only about economic estates, but also about luxurious country estates, or maritime villas, which served their owners as a place for rest and longer stays.

Title	Gospodarske prilike Karlova i okolice u vrijeme uvođenja socijalističkog sustava : (1945 - 1950.)
Publisher	Zagreb : Hrvatski institut za povijest : Alfa, 2025
Description	297 str. : graf. prikazi u bojama ; 23 cm
ISBN	9789538335648 : EUR 26.60 US$ 32.40
Anotation	Throughout its history, Karlovac was known as a trading city. Its important geostrategic position made it a transport hub for the exchange of goods and services. In the book, the author, based on unpublished archival material, press and relevant literature, explains the economic processes in Karlovac from 1945 to 1950. With the consolidation of communist power at the end of 1945, the process of dispossession of private owners in the sectors of agriculture, trade, industry and finance began.

Author	Davor, Marijan
Title	Hrvatska šutnja i godine raspleta – Hrvatska u Jugoslaviji 1980-tih
Publisher	Zagreb : Hrvatski institut za povijest, 2026
Description	812 str.; ilustr., 25 cm
ISBN	9789538335679 : EUR 53.20 US$ 64.90
Anotation	This is a book in which the author deals with the issues that the League of Communists of Croatia (SKH) has been addressing through the category of the political-security situation. It is actually a sphere of internal politics that until 1987 was categorized by the search for an internal enemy without whose existence the regime could not function. (...) Although it has seven chapters, the book is roughly divided chronologically into two parts. The natural boundary between the first and second parts of the book is mid-1987, plus or minus a few months towards spring or autumn, depending on the thematic sense of closing or opening individual chapters in the first or second part of the book.

Title	Liječenje i zbrinjavanje Židova u Bolnici sestara milosrdnica u Zagrebu 1941. – 1945.
Publisher	Zagreb : Hrvatski državni arhiv, 2025
Description	480 str. ; 24 cm
Note	The book contains 64 illustrated appendices and several tables, as well as an extensive 45-page name and geographical index.
ISBN	9789538461354 : EUR 42.50 US$ 51.80
Anotation	The book deals with the treatment, care and protection of Jews in the Hospital of the Sisters of Charity in Zagreb during the Second World War, i.e. the Independent State of Croatia (1941–1945), based on the archive materials of the Hospital, but also on numerous other sources, especially those stored in the State Archives in Zagreb and the Croatian State Archives. Some of the people who found short-term or long-term refuge in the Hospital managed to survive despite the difficult circumstances of the Holocaust. An integral part of the book, in addition to an extensive introductory study, is a list of Jews hospitalized in the Hospital, from January 1, 1941 (for the necessary comparison with a later period), to May 8, 1945 (the date of the entry of partisan units into Zagreb).

Anotation	The uninterrupted organization of the Senj Captaincy from its foundation in 1469 until its abolition in 1746 gave rise to the first late medieval system of a chain of fortifications in defense against the Ottomans, which would develop further from the mid-16th to the end of the 17th century. At the center of the captaincy was the town of Senj, under royal rule from 1469, surrounded by Frankopan fortresses and the estates of the nobles of Lika, Gacka and Krbava.

Anotation	Slovenian political concepts within the framework of Yugoslav ideology were shaped by the peripheral geographical position of the Slovenes in relation to other South Slavic peoples. The integration of the widest possible Slovenian ethnic space into the Yugoslav formation, whether within or outside the Habsburg Monarchy, was the fundamental political goal of the Slovenes at the turn of the 20th century.

Anotation	The number and strength of the Croatian guerrilla groups that emerged in Bosnia and Herzegovina were a consequence of the crimes committed by the communist partisans against the local Croats towards the end of World War II and after its end. The repressive actions of the communist authorities against the guerrillas also affected a significant part of the Croatian people in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The terror against the local Croatian population continued for years after the war. Armed resistance was crushed after six years of desperate fighting, but latent resistance remained until the end of the communist regime.

Anotation	The book systematically analyzes the various forms of barriers on migrant routes, drawing on the concept of the armed landscape. Barriers are not viewed simply as isolated physical objects but as multi-layered material and discursive elements that shape contemporary regimes of surveillance, control, and exclusion – from natural obstacles and wire fences, through camps and detention centers, to urban spaces of temporary assistance that reproduce the logic of borders in the heart of the city.

Anotation	Silvio Ferrari (Zadar, 22 September 1942) is an Italian Slavist, a prominent Italian Krležianist, a translator and writer who, throughout his entire life, both business and professional, as well as his private and extremely intimate life, has connected the Italian and Croatian coasts and literature. It follows that Ferrari is a bridge between two cultures - Italian and Croatian, to which he belongs - because through his stories he connects his two homelands, striving to bring Croatian cultural heritage and literature closer to the Italian audience, while at the same time they provide Croatian readers with a view from the perspective of an Italian intellectual who dedicated his life to educating young people and political work, and then to translating, interpreting and affirming Croatian literature in Italy.

Anotation	Roman Pavić's Forenzičar (Forensic Investigator) is a novel about love, painting and war, and the impossibility of escaping one's own fate, about death and a new life that begins where one least expects it. Forensic Investigator is a novel about those rare people among us, about idealists who are willing to risk everything. Yet, nothing can prepare them for the moment when they have to dissect their own hearts.

Anotation	The novel intertwines images of the author's life and professional successes, failures and changes, from her student days to adulthood. The story and climate images are based on scientific facts and possible scenarios for our future, and the plot is inspired by some real events from our immediate past. In the first Croatian eco-thriller, Sandra Vlašić weaves a story of courage, losses and an unwavering fight for what is right with humor and tenderness.

Anotation	The analogy between language and the world is at the heart of Grbić's thinking and imagination. The author draws on it on different occasions and with different intentions, and the idea of the world-making of language underlies all of them. [...] In doing so, he finds intriguing reasons in speech practice to intelligently and lucidly connect etymology, rhetoric, mythology, and literature in order to explain (or make clear) a linguistic phenomenon. Grbić's book is one of those rare publications that successfully bridges the gap between a specialist discussion and a text intended for interested laypeople.

Anotation	The novel Iznenada drugačije ili oj vaavoj (Suddenly Different or Oh Vaavoj) by Jasminka Domaš is inspired by the tradition or meaning of oral storytellers whose task was to strengthen the spirit and culture of the people. In the aforementioned text, she shows herself to be a great master of words, who is particularly suited to the short, demanding form of writing and who leads the reader from event to event. This exciting and very interesting journey through a series of life situations is full of humor, irony, philosophy of life, but sometimes also sadness and even feminist rebellion against the world of men.

Anotation	Inela Nogić's Miss opkoljenog Sarajeva is a kind of autobiographical corrective to the image that the media and the public have built about her based on the stories told by others. Writing about Sarajevo, which tires both those who stayed and those who left, Inela simultaneously writes a love letter to the city and to her own emotional geography. Her themes are childhood interrupted overnight, life that continues from country to country, from language to language, with cities and memories in suitcases in which, among the deepest compartments, trauma is placed.

Anotation	Vid Barić, one of the most prominent and original voices in domestic literature, writes openly, with a lot of humor and that dose of honesty that can sometimes hurt... Pisma iz Pekinga is not a travelogue, but a story about escape that actually talks about returning to oneself, one's ideals, and the life that we sometimes want to reject.

Anotation	This novel is based on true events. Some of the characters and events were invented or changed for the purposes of the novel. I became interested in the fate of Josip Begović while reading the investigative files of the Zagreb police, compiled during the investigation into the unsuspecting assassins of the Yugoslav king Aleksandar Karadžević in Zagreb, which are kept in the Croatian State Archives. (...) In this novel, we follow Josip Begović, who is in a Belgrade prison from midnight on May 12, 1934, until just after 4:00 a.m., when he is executed by hanging. During this time, he keeps vigil, questions the meaning of struggle and life, and recalls the events that led him to the gallows. (From the Introduction)

Title	Safari u Sarajevu : ili kako ubiti vampira
Publisher	Zagreb : Hena com, 2026
Description	125 str. ; 22 cm
ISBN	9789532595703 : EUR 21.20 US$ 25.90
UDC	821.163.44-31 * 821.163.4(497.6)-31
Anotation	This novel starts from the assumption that is almost impossible to accept, and even harder to ignore, that the violence against Sarajevo was also a spectacle, that people came to kill because they could, out of spite, for money, some out of habit. This novel does not arise as a reconstruction of the Sarajevo safari, nor does it view it as an isolated case. On the contrary, it reminds us of the universality of evil and of the bullet that never hits just one person, least of all a child. This is not a novel about the last war. It is a novel about the mechanism that allows violence to be repeated, crime to be normalized, suffering to be trivialized. Nikolaidis, in his best storytelling manner, leaves us with the disturbing realization that evil does not always come from outside, that it rarely stays behind us, and that, if it is not recognized, it always returns in some other form.

	The book "100 Eternal Ex-Yugoslav Pop-Rock Songs" is the result of twenty years of dedication by its author, Josip Dujmović, to the idea that some musical achievements from the emergence of popular music in Yugoslavia in the late 1950s to the collapse of the then state have become a permanent common treasure and heritage; "snapshots of time" that, with their universal values, have become not the best, not the most popular, not the greatest, but eternal.
